Nashville State Community College Early Childhood Education, AAS Student Learning Outcomes Report Spring 2023

Student ement Success Rate NAEYC Standard Key Element Leaning Outcome Knowing and understanding young children's characteristics and needs, from birth through age 8. 94% Knowing and understanding the multiple influences on early development and learning. 83% Using developmental knowledge to create healthy, respectful, supportive, and challenging learning 83% environments for young children. Knowing about and understanding diverse family and community characteristics. 88% Supporting and engaging families and communities through respectful, reciprocal relationships. 81% Involving families and communities in young children's development and learning. 78% Understanding the goals, benefits, and uses of assessment – including its use in development of 88% appropriate goals, curriculum, and teaching strategies for young children. Knowing about and using observation, documentation, and other appropriate assessment tools and approaches, including the use of technology in documentation, assessment, and data 95% collection. Understanding and practicing responsible assessment to promote outcomes for each child, 100% including the use of assistive technology for children with disabilities. Knowing about assessment partnerships with families and with professional colleagues to build 50% effective learning environments. Understanding positive relationships and supportive interactions as the foundation of their work 90% with young children. Knowing and understanding effective strategies and tools for early education, including 88% appropriate uses of technology. Using a broad repertoire of developmentally appropriate teaching/learning approaches. 87% 96% Reflecting on own practice to promote positive outcomes for each child.

ement	NAEYC Standard Key Element Leaning Outcome	Student Success Rate
	Understanding content knowledge and resources in academic disciplines: language and literacy; the arts – music, creative movement, dance, drama, visual arts; mathematics; science, physical activity, physical education, health and safety; and social studies.	94%
)	Knowing and using the central concepts, inquiry tools, and structures of content areas or academic disciplines.	80%
	Using own knowledge, appropriate early learning standards, and other resources to design, implement, and evaluate developmentally meaningful and challenging curriculum for each child.	70%
	Identifying and involving oneself with the early childhood field.	100%
)	Knowing about and upholding ethical standards and other early childhood professional guidelines.	69%
	Engaging in continuous, collaborative learning to inform practice; using technology effectively with young children, with peers, and as a professional resource.	69%
1	Integrating knowledgeable, reflective, and critical perspectives on early education.	90%
•	Engaging in informed advocacy for young children and the early childhood profession.	88%

The data report represents the percentage of students who are meeting performance standards within in each key element of the six NAEYC Professional Preparation Standards. The standards are evaluated using key assessments within the program of study. The first and second column identifies the key element learning outcome. The third column represents the student success rate based on the number of student who meet or exceed the performance standard expectation. Data reports are evaluated annually by faculty and plans for continued improvements are developed and implemented each academic year.